most computers have a feature that allows you to ask an online presence for help. anything from giving yourself a new email address to asking your mom to spend 10 minutes on your project can be handled by this browser-based help system. it is called ask, and it lets you do all this without leaving the njstar program. it probably takes 10 minutes to set up. the answer you want is in the help menu.

you can ask about commands, shortcuts or tell it that you are finished. first launch the software from the window that pops up for you to install it, then the software will create a folder in the mac's download folder named "njstarwp", and you can drag-and-drop the registered njstarwp version into the "njstarwp" folder on the mac's download folder. when done the download folder will be void and no more folders in the current mac's download folder. dillon beresford said a stack overflow vulnerability in a component of njstar communicator, a language translation application, could be used to take control of systems running the software, putting leading corporations including google, siemens, goldman sachs and the fbi at risk of attack. a metasploit module containing exploit code for the vulnerability in the minismtp (simple mail transfer protocol) server component of njstars communicator version 3 has been posted on exploit-db.com. after purchasing njstar wp registered version, you can download the windows exe file(into mac's download folder) from the links provided on the order completion page or in the email with the serial number, and then use mouse to drag-and-drop the exe file to the njstarwp app icon(created by the trial version) to start the standard installation.
